

All Jangro and Enviro products comply with the current EU regulations on biodegradability and protection for the environment. However, the Enviro range of products have been specially selected for their minimal environmental impact as determined by WEIR (Wright Environmental Impact Rating).

WEIR provides a consistent method of assessing the environmental impact of cleaning products. All products in the Enviro range are classed as a Low

Environmental Impact Rated Product according to WEIR.

The Jangro Group recognises that day-to-day cleaning operations, and the products used in those operations, impact on the environment. It is the policy of all companies within the Jangro Group to minimise any environmental effect of those activities.

The W.E.I.R Scheme Explained

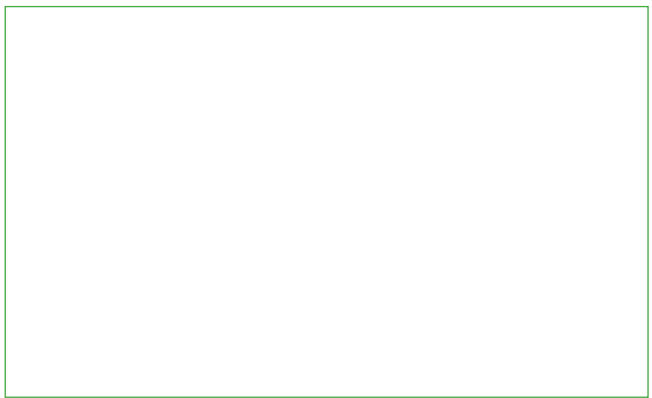

The Enviro cleaning products have each been formulated to ensure that any impact is kept to an absolute minimum, and have been designed to comply with all current European Regulations concerning biodegradability and the preservation of the environment.

There are various schemes used in Europe to determine environmental impact but none takes account of all of the relevant factors. For this reason a unique system has been devised for assessing the overall environmental impact of a product taking into account the formulation, manufacture, use and disposal of product. This scheme is called the 'Wright Environmental Impact Rating' (WEIR).

The impact rating is determined using the following 7 criteria –

1. The raw materials used.
2. Risk of release to the environment.
3. Environmental hazard classification.
4. Water usage in the product.
5. Impact of product usage.
6. pH – acidity or alkalinity.
7. Impact of energy used to prepare & manufacture the product.

Each product is measured according to these criteria to produce a rating. The lower the overall rating, the lower the impact it has on the environment.
